We Live in A Parallel Reality

A parallel reality, also known as an alternate universe or dimension, is a hypothetical concept of a universe that exists alongside our own but with potentially different physical laws and history. In essence, it's a separate reality that may or may not be similar to our own. Many people might refer to something that happens to you in a 'Parallel Reality' simply as a "Glitch in the Matrix."

-My First Encounter With A Parallel Reality Was in 2020:

The first time I experienced something strange that told me we might be living in a 'Parallel Reality' was in 2020 when I moved out west close to Sedona, AZ. I knew the area was known for UFOs and other paranormal activities. I was out on Natural Forest Land in my Van, #StarShip, trying to power up my first power box. It was a Jackery 500, and I had a 100-watt solar panel for that brand. As soon as I exited the vehicle to try to line up the solar panel with the sun, I was shocked at how quickly the box went from zero percent to 100% percent. This process in the past would take a couple of hours, but this time it only took around 15 minutes. What made the experience stranger is that at this same time, I received two text messages back-to-back – one from each of my daughters. After studying the text messages, I realized these messages were sent to me by my daughters at least 3 years prior.

-My Second Encounter with a Parallel Reality Was in 2023:

By the time I had another encounter with possibly living in a 'Parallel Reality', I had become entrenched in Spirituality, and I had all the signs of a Spiritual Awakening. Things were happening almost daily to me, such as ringing in my ears, seeing number sequences, pineal gland activations, etc. I received so many downloads during that time in Meditations and Dreams. This happened in the month of July. Because I travel and teach from my Van, #StarShip, if I park at night in the sun, it means that by 8:00 a.m., when I usually wake up, I will need to jump up and open my windows, turn my inside fan back on, or turn on one of the fans on the roof, especially if I planned on sleeping a little later.

At that time, I had a large queen mattress in my vehicle, so when I woke up, I was sleeping on my right side like always. Because of how the mattress lay with one or two people, I could tell there was someone lying behind me on the mattress. But before I could turn over to see who it was, I started gasping for air because I had parked in the direct sunlight. As I jumped off the bed, I turned around and saw myself when I was in my 20s. As I turned back around to open a window, the other version of me disappeared.

Before she disappeared, she had sat up and made the statement, "Skye thinks she knows everything, doesn't she? She had to be talking about Skye Prince over the Humanitarian Projects and Med Beds because I had watched several of her videos before going to sleep the night before. The entire experience was weird, and initially, I even wrote it off as a dream but later realized it wasn't a dream.

-My Third Encounter With A Parallel Reality was in 2025:

Again, I was still in the same part of the country near Sedona, AZ, when my third encounter occurred. I was in the city, and I wanted to have a productive day on the computer, working on a newsletter. So when I got up and got out my laptop computer and turned it on, I could only go to Gmail, Google, and other websites, but I could not go to my own website at www.CathyHarrisInternational.com to make revisions. After being frustrated for several minutes, I made the statement, "Wow, I need to get my computer fixed." I had a new computer, but usually my computer guy in Texas would help set it up; otherwise, the computer would freeze or give me some other type of difficulty. Since this was the first time in 5 years that I did not go back to Texas, I did not have my computer guy to help me.

Since I could not get on my website, I decided to work on something else. Exactly 15 minutes after I made the statement, "I NEED TO GET MY COMPUTER FIXED," my phone rang, and the guy said, "IS THIS CATHY HARRIS?" I replied, "yes". Then he said, "YOUR COMPUTER IS FIXED." I replied with, "Whaaattt, I am on my computer. What do you mean? I am on my computer right now." He said this is the computer repair shop, and your computer is ready to be picked up. Again, I said I am on my computer right now. Then I asked, "Where are you calling me from?" He had to say the word Cottonwood, AZ, three times because I was unable to make out what he was saying. It sounded like he was calling me from another dimension. I could barely hear him.

Then I told him I put my computer in a computer repair shop in Cottonwood, AZ, 3 years ago. Then he said we must have gotten the ticket mixed up. I told him I was just saying to myself I needed to get my computer fixed, and then he called. He laughed at the whole ordeal, and so did I. I started to tell him that if a black female in her 60s came in to pick up the computer, that is another version of me. The computer started working after the phone call so the entire ordeal was extremely weird.

Others Who Have Experienced 'Parallel Realities'

-A woman came out of an apartment building, and on the first day, there was construction everywhere. Then the next day, there was no construction, so everything was energy and an illusion.

-A woman was out jogging and saw an airplane about to crash. She ran back home to watch the news, but they never reported it because it happened in another dimension that had crossed over into hers.

-One woman said she went outside, and an airplane was going forward and then backwards. Then she saw the cars going forward and then backwards. That was another dimension crossing over.

-One woman went from her apartment to the outside and started walking down the street. She said everyone was dressed like they were in the 1950s, so she got scared and went back inside, and when she came out again a few hours later, it was normal.

-One lady said she went on vacation, and when she exited the street to get gas, she said the entire block looked like it was in the 1800s, so she kept going and got back on the freeway.

-There was a man who got a phone call at 2:00 a.m. from his cousin. The next day, he asked his cousin why he had called him so late at night. The cousin replied, "I never called you." So it was another version of his cousin reaching out to him.

-One guy online said his daughter came into the kitchen while he was preparing breakfast, and she said, "Dad, I have to leave early today because we have a field trip." He said he thought it was strange because he did not remember signing a permission slip, but then she walked out of the door and said goodbye. Then, 5 minutes later, his daughter walked into the kitchen and asked, "What are we having for breakfast?" He said he then asked her, "I thought you left, where were you?" She replied, "I was brushing my teeth."

-Another guy said he exited a building and saw a car pulling out into the street, then when he turned around, the car was pulling up next to him.

-Another guy said his young son has a picture on his tablet of him sitting in an old-fashioned living room, but it isn't their home. Where did the picture come from?

-Another guy said after picking up his daughter from school, a teacher called to say his daughter had not been picked up. He responded, "She is with me right now." However, since he was on his way home, he told them he would be right there, but when he got there, they said no one had called him.

People are saying they are sitting in the kitchen, then their spouses will be on the couch, and the next minute, they are in another chair, but they don't remember them getting up to move. Also, remote controls, glasses, scissors, and other objects are disappearing and reappearing in the correct spot 3 days later. It happened to me. I only have 2 places in my Van where I keep my glasses, so when I laid them down, they disappeared, then reappeared 3 days later in the spot where I left them. Again, we and objects around us are constantly going in and out of other timelines, parallel universes, and dimensions.
