What Does it Mean to be an Humanitarian?

Dictionary.com states that Humanitarians have concern for helping to improve the welfare and happiness of people. Therefore, do you have a Humanitarian heart? There is good in most people, but do they actually have what it takes to really help others? If you are afraid of the poor and underprivileged, then it might be hard for you to help others.

Your Humanitarian Project could be saving dogs, cats, horses, lunch programs, Veterans, etc. Have you ever wanted to start a Humanitarian Project from the ground-up, but didn't know how to start?

Gaining experience in the humanitarian field can be a difficult task, so it will be important to form relationships with others involved in Humanitarian Projects, especially those creating similar projects to yours and those in your own community.

Meet in Think Tank meetings on the phone, computer (Zoom.US, FreeConferencecall.com, etc.) or in person once or twice a week to bounce ideas off each other. You can start regular Meetup.com meetings in communities or even in your homes.

Hold discussions and use this time also to learn about and Spirituality, Consciousness, Ascension, etc. because after all we are transitioning to a 5D earth. Join Gaia.com and go on YouTube and take classes. The flat earthers are meeting all over the country in Meetup.com meetings.

What Will Happen During the Redemption Center Notifications

When Redemption Center notifications come many will be off doing Humanitarian Projects and will be under 90-day NDAs, so everything on the Humanitarian and Med Bed Center groups on Telegram, Facebook and YouTube might be on mute.

Skye Prince, with the Military Alliance, will be checking back in so sign up for all her videos on Telegram, Facebook and YouTube. She is committed to doing at least four (4) Humanitarian Projects. One of her projects will be an Education Center inside her 3-bed Med Bed Center and a Horse Rescue Humanitarian Project.

Make sure you keep reading the updated article entitled “Preparing for the New Quantum Financial System (QFS)” at www.CathyHarrisSpeaks.com to stay updated with everything. Just remember all of this is new so just stay focused and have fun with everything. We are transitioning to a happy place so just breathe!!! #5DEarth

What You Need To Present At the Last Door At Your Redemption Center Appointment

The very LAST STATION at your Redemption Center appointment is to acknowledge if you have a Humanitarian Project in mind. Most people or the majority of people won't even know what it means so they will be told they are finished with their Redemption Center appointments, and they will leave.

Others, like yourself, would have already conducted research ahead of time and will be ready. If you are passionate about your Humanitarian Project, then present a small write-up at the LAST STATION at your Redemption Center appointment. Just remember you will still need to be approved for funding.

All you need for a Humanitarian Project is three (3) short paragraphs with two (2) or three (3) sentences in each paragraph. However, if you are serious, you should at least have a half a page and/or a one (1) page Business Summary or Business Plan Proposal (samples are online). Put it out on pretty designer paper and put it in a see-through folder or binder and be ready to explain your project in a few minutes. Make sure you dress as if you are going in for a job interview.

Come up with a name for your project then tell how long your project will last (5, 10, 15 or 20 years). Then write down the PROBLEM, the SOLUTION and why you are the person for the job. Explain how much money you will need and make an itemized list of potential ways you will be using your funds. Using the bulleted format is a great idea and makes it easier to read.

What You Should Know If You Plan on Opening a Med Bed Center

They will be using Humanitarian Projects to rebuild the world, but first we need to heal those who will be running these Humanitarian Projects especially the Education, Med Bed and Healing Centers so we can OPEN TO THE PUBLIC as soon as possible.

Those who will be starting Humanitarian Projects, especially opening Med Bed Centers and their dependents (anyone they take care of including their animals because there will be Med Beds for animals) will have FIRST PRIORITY to use the Med Beds.

If you are starting a Med Bed Center, there will be funds to renovate a building or buy land and build a new building, which might take a couple of years, but there should be funds to do either, whichever you choose to do.

It should take about 6 to 8 months (but maybe 3 to 4 months) for the Med Bed Centers to open, but try to hire those with experience (Doctors, Nurses, etc.) so these Med Bed centers can go up ASAP, before we lose others to sickness and diseases.

There must be at least one doctor on duty at all times in Med Bed Centers. If a doctor can learn the Med Bed technology in two days, unless he or she understand Spirituality and Consciousness, his or her Med Bed center training will still last about six (6) months.

Read the article entitled “What You Need to Know About Med Beds” at www.CathyHarrisSpeaks.com. The article like this article will continue to be updated as videos and other material is released. Just remember what we are doing is new and nothing is etched in stone so we can make changes as we go.

Why Humanitarians Will Need to Sign an NDA After Their Redemption Center Appointments

If you get approved for Humanitarian Project funding, there will be at least a 90 day wait to start your project. During these 90 days, the Military Alliance would like for all Humanitarians to take off for 90 days and work on their own household because many Humanitarians are homeless living in hotels or with others. The wait will also help you keep your 90-day NDA.

If you break the NDA, they will probably take back your humanitarian funds. Basically, they don't want you telling others about how much Humanitarian Project funds you received and other personal info about the Redemption Center process to even family members who don't have the need to know.

Unless it is a husband or wife who will be working together in the Humanitarian Project, it is none of their business and you could be putting yourself and your family in harm's way if family members make the wrong statements to others, especially those with a criminal mind.

By six (6) months you need to show some type of progress with your Humanitarian Project or funds will probably be taken away or withheld so only apply for Humanitarian Projects if you are serious.

How Much Money Will Humanitarians Receive?

Everyone has something in their hearts that they would do if they had plenty of money. It doesn't have to be this gigantic 'Save the world campaign'. It can be anything that makes the world a better place.

Just ask for the money. However, they will know who is serious and who is not. Someone very high up has said to expect a million dollars in seed money for your Humanitarian Project. There will be requirements – of course. They will of course check on different things, but it seems like they really want those who can to get involved.

Just remember the money isn't for you. It is for your Humanitarian Project. Of course, you will have a salary coming out of the funds and won't need to work a 9:00-5:00 job, but the Humanitarian Project funds are for your Humanitarian Project – not you.

The project might not survive because most people don't have the ability to keep it going or won't have the desire to continue the project. They know that! However, you can hire others to help keep your books and even keep up with emails so understand you don't have to do everything by yourself.

Will You Have Help with Your Humanitarian Project?

They will use Humanitarian Projects to rebuild the world so sit down and really think about a project that you have in mind. The Military Alliance will help you package your Humanitarian Project request so stay tuned for future training on Humanitarian Projects. The money came from evil, but it is going to be used in Humanitarian Projects -- for good.

Be Careful Putting Too Much On Your Plate

You can have more than one Humanitarian Project. But be careful putting too much on your plate. Just understand upfront that you might end up working on that project for 12 to 16 hours a day and if you aren't totally passionate about it -- you won't want to do it.

Also, don't put anything before gaining your health back. The good news is because you and your dependents (and animals) will gain access to Med

Beds after your first round of funding -- your body should recover fairly quickly.

All you need to do is come up with an action plan for your health maintenance such as -- gaining access to good foods, good water, take daily supplements, exercise regularly, get plenty of rest, sunshine and breathe in fresh air daily.

Go in nature as often as possible and get grounded by walking barefoot for at least 20 minutes. Do meditation and yoga, which are the two best exercises for the brain. Also, since they are cleaning up the environment, you should be able to maintain your health.

You Are Needed To Help Build the New 5D Earth

Remember we will be going to 4-day work and school weeks, so many will only need to work 20 or more hours a week. Forty (40) hour workweeks will go away, and everyone can use their time to work on Creative and Humanitarian Projects.

This whole moving forward into the New Earth won't take place without you. No matter what position you hold. No matter what job you decide to do. You are needed. Everyone is needed – no matter how big or small.

Just find your passion. Your health and age mean nothing at all because Med Beds will give you back your health. Therefore, anyone at any age can be involved with their own Humanitarian Project or just work with other Humanitarian Projects or start their own Creative projects and businesses.

Now it is time to do what you always wanted to do. Your life is right in front of you – so live it fully. It's time to be happy and free. Nothing will be hard moving forward in a 5D world. All you have to do is show up.

Jobs and Businesses Working with Humanitarian Projects

Because we are moving into a 5D earth, we will be rebuilding the world with Humanitarian Projects so this is why I am encouraging everyone who can to get involved. You don't necessarily have to open your own Humanitarian Project, but there will be plenty of positions to work for others who have Humanitarian Projects such as these potential jobs and businesses.

Whether you are growing foods; providing housing for the homeless; providing temporary or permanent housing for homeless so they can clean up before Med Bed procedures; whether you are looking out for kids without families; cleaning the ocean, etc. -- you will probably need to hire workers.

Education Centers, Med Bed and Healing Centers for HUMANS and ANIMALS will also need to hire workers from the following positions. They will need Managers and staff for Education Centers, Managers and staff for Med Bed Centers, and Managers and staff for Healing Centers.

Other positions needed will be doctors, nurses, med bed operators/med bed techs, accountants, someone to do emails/keep the books, receptionists, phone operators, Med Bed call centers, boot camp workers, Spiritual Counselors, psychotherapists, physical therapists, massage therapists, teachers, meditation instructors, yoga instructors, dieticians, lifeguards, barbers, hair stylists, nail techs, makeup artists, thrift stores, security officers, ambulance drivers, bus drivers, airport drivers, transport services, handicapped vehicles, delivery drivers, cinema operators, gift shop workers, cafe shop workers, kitchen staff, housekeeping staff, landscapers/gardeners, veterinarians (rescue horses), emergency vet drivers, stable hands, animal attendants, hay/feed delivery drivers, firewood collectors, staffing services, pet sitting services, etc.
